The steamer Glenron, which arrived here yesterday morning from Foschow, gives a report containing much interesting matter. Some rough weather was experienced as she lay at Foochow, and while there the steamer Benalder arrived and reported having left s ship dismested bound from Nova Scotia to Shanghai, leaden with petroleam, off Pang Ying, Eleven of her orew immed overboard, and were picked up by the steamer, which brought them on to Foochow. On the 5th inst. a Chinese gunboat went out in search of the ship, and the steamer Radnorshire. which arrived a day or two afterwards, reported having passed the gunboat returning from her search. The Radnorshire also reported that on the 6th at 1 p.m. she saw a vessel on fire off Fund Ying. This is all the information yet to hand concerning the matter, but it seems not improbable that the vessel seen on fire by the Radnorshire was the same ship laden with petroleum that was seen dismasted by the Benalder.

Murders, suicides and executions seem recent ly to predominate over everything else at the Anchorage. We hear of two instances of suicide having taken place there during the past week, but not of a sufficiently remantic character as to interest our readers. One exacution is reported. Regarding the murder case at the Anchorage -in which all attempts of bribery to save the offenders' head proved fatile-we further learn that immediately after the execution, the irate cases of actual death arising therefrom are rehibited for cale, and which is quickly purchased by the natives, who, by the expenditure of a few cash, have an eligible opportunity of committing spicide during this hot weather.

There were but a few, mostly strangors, so to speak, to see him to his last resting place. His Imperial Majesty's Customs, always the first in this country to do a good action towards the friendless and unfortunate, sent their stoom launch to the Hospital Landing this morning though it was blowing pretty fresh, and had the remains brought over to the cemetery. where they were consigned to rest in the presence of the Customs staff and some of the resident

This gity is now ablase with excitement: not filled with the larid flames that I watched a few years ago when the people wers frantic about the queue-outting mysteries, but still gently blazing with an excitement that is steadily spreading. The great Kien Lung visited this goot when he made his famous journey through the Empire; but it may be fairly questioned whether his visit produced a deeper impression upon the imagination of the people than the presence of the elephant. "Have you seen the elephant?"-is the one absorbing question that is discussed in the tea-shops of the city The very air is full of particles of information breathed and rebreathed, and blown stout every direction. He is a very ignorant man who does not know that it cost thirty dollars to bring the giant from Shanghal and that the fee for admission was a hundred cash at first but is now only forty. > THE WRECK OF THE "ARTEMISIA. The Shanghai Courier gives the following details of this disaster :- The Artemisia was outside the Saddles for 48 bours with the wind blowing from E.N.E. with a sweeping sea from S.E. At noon on Mo day, the Slat July, the ship was found to be two miles to the eastward of the E. Saddle, having been driven to leeward under shortened canvas. Captain Lass then ran back to Elliot Island, expecting a typhoon, an the glass was falling against the easterly wind. He found the vicinity of the Island too open a readstead and bere away for Tungshe Lightship. This a find nothing could be western the vesse wa then run in under the lead from sir to five fathoms. - . The second mate was sent up aloft to keep a lookout, the Captain went forward for the same purpose; while the first mate watched the steering and the soundings. When the vessel got into five fathoms, at 9 p.m., one anchor was let go on 80 fathoms of chain, but as tho see was so beavy, 15 fathoms more were paid out. At U.30 p.m. soundings were taken with fathoms. At 3 a.m. on the let, the mate also senuded, getting bottom at 5 fathoms. At 4.30 a.m.; the Captain was called, and the second mate reported the ship touching the ground in two fathoms of water. The cable was hove in to 15 fathome and all sail was made, the ship heading S.E. by E. The cable was then slipped and an

They thought the vessel had settled on the bottom, when she suddenly cank down altogether, with her bulwarks level with the water. The crew took to the mizzen rigging except the Captain and the Chief Officer, who stayed on the top of the house and lashed themsolves to the mast, as the sea was making a clean breach over the reasel. At this time a brig bore away and then anchored S.E. from the wreck about 3 miles off. A little later a steamer bore down and anchored astern of the brig. The brig was the Argos, Captain Johnson, and the steamer the Oaklands, Captain Payne. The Argos sent a boat under sail to the rescue of the Artemisia's oraw, but it could not fetch the wreck, owing to the strong tide which set the boat to leeward. The steamer sent a pulling boat, but it had to return. When the tide began to fall, the crow of the Artemina tried to right their big boat and bail the water out so that they could drift towards the brig-They could only adopt this course as their oars were all gone. When the boat was righted, it was found that her bilges and how were stove in Nothing further could be done, and the crew waited patiently for assistance from elsewhere, All the men's clothing had been washed overboard, while that which they were wearing was torn and wet. The Oaklands made another attempt, this time with a sailing boat, which was manned by Mr. Scott, Chief Officer, and six European passengers, who had belonged to the orew of the Dorothy, at Nagasaki, and were their way to Shanghai. They succeeded in their efforts and had the satisfaction of rescuing the 15 souls who formed the Arteminia's crow, also the dog, and took them on board the Oaklands at 4 p.m. on the lat inst.

The Assistant Magistrate there, however, came forward to guarantee his honesty, and he was discharged. pirotical attacks in July, already described, had Po understand his subsequent career it is necessary to glance at a map of this province. Between the On-river on the south and the Chiso river on the north, and running down almost to the coast, stretches a tract, some hundreds of square miles in extent, of desolate hill coun try, sparsely inhabited by a population of the poorest means and most turbulent character. Law can scarcely be said to exist within its limits. It is chiefly the home of numerous and well-armed gangs of robbers, who make it a base from which to organise raids upon the wealthier inhabitants, around its outskirts, or, in conjunction with the island fishermen, to attack trading junks frequenting the ports. To this district January of this year, he underwent the same Hwang Chin-man retired and speedily collected | punishment: around him a band of nearly 100 of these desperate characters. His raids were organised with such daring and skill, and attended with Wong Ayan and Li Atso, coolies, were fixed. This once delabrated place contains large collect such marked success, that he rapidly gained a should have been spiked, and by the capture, most unenviable notoriety; and in the course of shortly after, in the creek outside the same gambling with a number of other man in Market- mortar, each of which bears some resemblance to time became recognised as their leader by the other robber-chiefs, who had, it is said, a following of nearly 4,000 men, armed with muskets in escaping under the cover of night (when the and well supplied with ammunition. In spite, however, of this nominal chieftalnehip, the cover any clan as to who spiked the gans or for bands seem to not independently; but Hwang Chin-man was thus able to increase largely his own personal bands, and to raise the number of his own piratical craft to eleven sail. On land he seems to have confined his operations to the attack and robbery of official yamens, Likin offices, grain-tribute warehouses, and pawnshops, or to the seigure of wealthy individuals to be held to ransom. If he succeeded in capturing officials or literati, he executed these with scant ceremony; but the lower classes and small traders remained unmolasted, and even assistance was readily given by him to those in distress. On sea he allowed junks belonging to his native Chemist or doalor in perfectory in the World those only which arrived with produce from sands. Most of them pay for their admission; other ports. By such conduct he came to be named Yau Sing living in Battery-road, and but soldiers and other miscreauts force their way regarded by the populace as the champion of the sores of ground at Suez, purchased from the the rich. By them he has boon kept well informed of the movements of troops, and when hard pressed, has been readily sheltered or provided with the means of escape. A thousand Hunsu braves under General Lo Madras Mail. were despatched against him. They drove him and his band into a defile in the Yent'ang range, which runs through the tract of desclate country above described; but there the robbers defonded themselves with such address that nearly 100 of the Government troops were killed or wounded. and Hwang Chiu-man made good his escape without the loss of one of his followers. During the past year, bowever, his proceedings have been characterized by an audacity previously anknown, and which has caused something like panic smong the officials along the seaboard. In many of the outrages which have been committed, Hwang Chin-man was not, however, personally the leader; but as his name alone suffices to strike terror, it is made use of by all gangs of robbers, and be lawlesshess commission.

In the middle of July gir trading vessels were plundered off Chumen, in the Yuhwan district. Two gunboats were despatched against the pirates; so soon, however, as those latter were sighted, one of the gunboats turned and escaped. and her companion, being insufficiently supplied with ammunition, was captured and burnt, and the coptain and all his orew, with three exceptions, were put to the sword: A few days after. wards the piratical boats were seen in the neighbourhood with colours flying, the ensigns bearing the characters Prince Chin-man. On the 24th July the district prison at Linksi wabroken open and the prisoners, some 20 robbers. released. Two days later the Likin station at Heitien, on the confines of the Fanhwa and Ninghal districts, was attacked, the official in charge hung to a hook by his zone, and every thing in the station carried off. On the 28th. the district warehouse for tribute-grain at Linhai was plundered, and nearly $1,000 carried off. On the 27th August Hwang Chin-man made descent upon Hwach'iao, to revenge himself upon the military officer who had arrested him years previously. In the general exodus which news of the pirate fleet's approach had caused, this officer had, however, fled. Among the few who remained was the Assistant Magistrate, who, on the occasion of Hwang's arrest years before, had obtained his release, and who now thought he could have nothing to fear from one to whom he-had rendered so great a service. He was, however, mistaken. He was massacred, together with the whole of his family. His servants and everything of value, whether Government or private property, were carried off by the pirates, and the buildings were razed to the ground The pirates did not leave till the following day, and then did so boldly, with colours flying. n the 6th September the Likin station at Chinch'ing, in the Taip'ing district, was plundored, and the officer in charge carried off and held to ransom for $2,000. raised $500, but while negotiations were pending, approach of Government vessels forced the pirates to put to sea. These were the Arsenal ganboats Tuenkai, Pupo. and Chi'an, with the newly appointed Preof Taichow, Ch'eng Pangkan, on heard. The granboats overtook the piratical fleet, comprising some 20 vessels, off Kan mon and at once engaged them. The pirates, half their fleet having been lost, and their chief. Hwang Chin-man, being wounded, drew of into the neighbouring creeks, and, under cover of night, succeeded in slipping past the gunboats. They made for Ch'uan tung men, in the Yoch'ing district, the garrison of which place fled at their approach. The pirates landed, abandoning their vessels, and, sided by native guide, succeeded in making good their escape into the hill country to the rear, carrying their leader on an improvised litter. In the meanwhile, reinforcements of Government troops had been hurried up, but the night being dark and a heavy storm raging, they soon abandoned the pursuit. Had the troops pressed forward, it seems probable that they might at that time have captured or destroyed the entire band, for their ammunition was exhausted they were dispirited by the wound their leader had austained, and incommoded in their movements by having to carry him. Since that day Hwang Chin-man I believe, personally led any expedition.

On the 16th September the Arsenal gunboat Chao-wu, Captain Yeh, was ordered to proceed against the pirates. On arriving at K'an men, the captain learned that the place had just been visited by them, but that at the approach of the ganboat they had retired up a creek with all speed. Taking with him his brother, two officers, 19 of his own crew, and a company of Wenchow brayes (40 rank and file and their officers), be started in pursuit by boat, and Major Teso, of the Yoch'ing garrison, was to support him on shore with a body of 100 men. The pirates, being close pressed, abandoned their boats and fled inland. Captain Yeh then landed his men and The Spanish Government are strongly in fa- followed them. Many boxes of letters are received at the Post Office not sealed, that is to say, the box is tastened with sealing war, but there is no impression of a scal.
The attention of boxholders is called to the necessity of carefully sealing such boxes with some recognisable seal and of sanding a chit-book or receipt with them. The omission of the latter precaution leaves a doubt as to whether the contents of the box ever reached the Post Office: the omission of the former, as to whether part of them might not have been abstracted for the sake of the Postage Stamps.
